New Video Highlights How AHA is Working to Support Hospitals and Health Systems

Video features updates on advocacy efforts, initiatives for members

The AHA today released a new video featuring some of the accomplishments and key initiatives the association has undertaken to support members during the first part of this year. From sounding the alarm on the workforce emergency to shining a spotlight on commercial payer abuses, the AHA has been supporting and advancing member interests on many fronts.

Among other highlights featured in the video are:

- Convening hospital and health system leaders for in-depth discussions and idea exchanges;
- Fighting the threat of cyberattacks;
- Addressing the national blood shortage; and
- Raising our voice to keep workers safe.

Please take two minutes to watch the video here. We're continuing to work to address the challenges facing your organization and provide you the support you need to continue caring for your patients and communities.

Thank you for your membership and for your dedication to advancing health in America.
